Better evidence. Better outcomes.

Unlock your leadership potential!

The Joanna Briggs Institute Clinical Leadership Program

Often people find themselves in leadership roles feeling under-prepared, and facing huge expectations. Great leadership requires an understanding of oneself and others. The good news is that these people-management and leadership skills can be developed.

The Joanna Briggs Institute (JBI) Clinical Leadership Program provides participants with information and practical techniques to create a more positive, personal and professional culture back in their workplace. It also helps participants to identify strategies that will assist in managing difficult behaviour, building productive teams and implementing change, thereby enabling effective leadership of projects and people.

Our facilitators guide participants through contemporary models and tools to enable them to develop understanding and strategies related to clinical leadership and change management in health care using real world examples.

This dynamic and transformative program is open to clinical leaders and leaders-to-be from all health care disciplines.
