

UCSF Centre for Evidence Synthesis & Implementation: A
Joanna Briggs Institute Center of Excellence

Clinical Fellows Program 2017

This six-month program is designed for nurse clinicians, managers, educators, and researchers who want to explore strategies that promote evidence implementation. Two week-long intensive workshops will be conducted at the UCSF JBI Centre in San Francisco, California. In the intervening months between the workshops, participants will work with a Clinical Coach to create and launch an Evidence Implementation Project at their home institution. Participants must have access to a clinical population for their implementation projects.

The overall objectives of this program are to:

1. Teach participants critical elements of evidence implementation, namely: developing a project protocol; developing mastery of PACES and GRIP JBI software; launching and evaluating an evidence implementation project at one's home institution; and disseminating project findings through manuscript writing, presentations, and other modalities.
2. Develop and hone participants' leadership skills that are necessary to implement and sustain a successful evidence implementation project.
3. Develop and hone participants' analytical thinking and writing skills that can improve patient, family, and system outcomes.
4. Foster participants' professional growth and development.
